SPIRIT OF THE ANDES

QUALITY YOU CAN FEEL...

WELCOME

It is with great pleasure that I write to you exactly one year after being able to bring the Spirit of the Andes back from the brink of extinction. With our renewed efforts we have successfully rebuilt the brand and continue to bring the artisan garments that you, our customer, appreciate and love.

We are indebted to the huge support and backing that our customers have given us and I am certain that you will be as excited as I am with our new brochure. Incorporating the best of the past, we are delighted to introduce new lines with a fresher, more contemporary edge.

All credit goes to our dedicated suppliers who have stood with us through challenging times, sharing our vision to provide the best quality garments made from the finest alpaca fibre and pima cotton. It is because of their skill, loyalty and expertise we are able to bring you this most classic and exciting Autumn Winter collection.

I welcome and value your comments and only by listening to our customers can we hope to achieve your satisfaction.

With very best wishes

THE WONDERFUL ALPACA

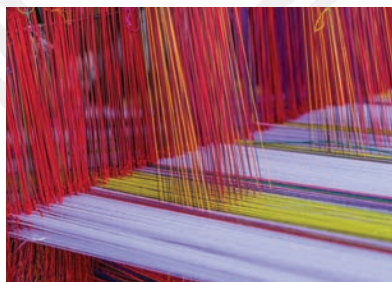

Beyond their quirky looks, charming expressions and wide curious eyes, Alpacas are most widely admired for their soft, luxurious fleece.

Bred mainly on the Andean Altiplano in Peru, Bolivia and Chile, this beautiful animal has adapted to a life of extreme temperatures. The result is a fleece that enjoys outstanding 'weather resistant' thermal regulating properties, keeping its wearers snug and warm in the cold and cool and comfortable in warm weather.

The beauty and versatility of the Alpaca's fleece was first recognised 6000 years ago by the indigenous people of Peru, who originally domesticated the animal specifically to harvest its fleece.

Modern wearers appreciate Alpaca garments in much the same way, though thankfully this treasure of the Andes has become more widely accessible. With no lanolin and none of the 'prickliness' of sheep's wool, Alpaca fibre is naturally hypoallergenic and is perhaps the silkiest, most versatile gift of nature.

Spirit of the Andes works hard with small village groups to help continue and expand these ancient skills.
