Laminated Security Glass

 Toughened security laminated glass is made from two or more annealed sheets or heat treated and bonded together using interlayers. In essence laminated glass when struck does not break away. It sticks to the plastic type coating which ensures it stays safely in place and secure. This makes it an extremely effective defence against glass smashing attempts.

Laminate glass is essentially the same glass used in car windscreens and is designed to stay together upon impact and not shatter making this an excellent security product.

SheffLOCK have made the laminated glass price affordable and due to there being no need to replace the window frames when upgrading to laminate glass.

- British standard EN 14449 accredited
